Guidelines for the awarding of grants from the John Björkhem Memorial Foundation

1. The Foundation will award grants and bursaries exclusively for the purpose of furthering parapsychological research on a scientific basis.
2. That funding is available shall be made known for all SPF members as well as any other means the council deems suitable.
3. A research project can vary in its duration and can concern everything from a minor scientific study to solving of a larger research task. The application for bursaries or grants for a research project should be sent by email. This should always contain a description of the goal of the project, a plan of work and schedule, which describes how the goals of the project will be reached, a budget, and information about the way in which the results are planned to be published.
4. The received applications have to be forwarded to the Foundation's board members. The chairperson shall see to it that one or more experts, internal or external to the foundation, submit their assessment(s) of the application. The decision is made by the board of the Foundation. In the context of paying the award, the board and the recipient shall agree as to how the research will be presented. On publishing the results that are achieved through research with support of the fund, the support of the Foundation shall be acknowledged.
5. In addition to grants and bursaries which are to be awarded in the premises described in points 2-4, the Foundation is able to award grants according to another premise— but the sum of such awards must not exceed 30% of the resources which are available for awarding during the year. For amounts over this the board can make exceptions from the points 2-4 only if there are special reasons for this.
