

Book references Edward Kelly/John Cleese

The books of which I'm lead author are Irreducible Mind: Toward a Psychology for the 20th Century (2015); Beyond Physicalism: Toward Reconciliation of Science and Spirituality (2015); and Consciousness Unbound: Liberating Mind from the Tyranny of Materialism (2021); all published by Rowman & Littlefield.

The one by Phillip Goff that's drawn a lot of critical attention, and where he describes his own confidence about fresh winds blowing in metaphysics and philosophy of mind is Galileo's Error.

The recent book by Tim Eastman proposing an alternative way of expanding science is Untying the Gordian Knot: Process, Reality, and Context, published by Lexington Books in 2020. He provides lots of pointers into the very active world of contemporary Whitehead scholarship, of which he is a prominent member.

You can get to our DOPS website (Division of Perceptual Studies) and find lots of stuff including book recommendations and copies of many papers by just googling "DOPS UVA".

Pointers to all areas of psychical research plus the controversies surrounding it can be found in the (somewhat outdated but still useful) annotated bibliography from Irreducible Mind, attached.
